City Circulator Elder W. P. Mothershead.

To the Gazette. On the morning of the 14th inst. Rev W. P. Mothershead died at his home near A lington, Tex. It is improper that one useful, worthy and honorable should pa of the stage of action without at least of brief notice of his death in some of the pa-pers of the county of which for eleven years he had been a loyal citizen.

The writer was personally accept the this goddy man and can conscient say that he never met an individual of pure morals, higher honor or of more spotles reputation. For many years he had been a minister of the gospel, and though not a classical scholar he was a fluent and foreible preacher, laboring with great succes in calling men from the ways of sin to the loves of pure and holy religion. His system Joys of pure and holy religion. His every-day life was an eloquent sermon and was more convincing to the skeptic of the truth of the Christianity which be professed than the profoundest logic of the ablest theo-

From the Texas Baptist and Herald, which devotes nearly a column of the editorial page to his memory. I learn that he was born near Mount Pleasant, Marshall county, Miss. May 24, 1839. He was converted at the early age of twelve years, but did not join the church until 1888, when a soldier in the Confederate army in Viscoira soldier in the Confederate army in Virginia. He was baptized in the Potomac river by Rev. Dr. J. A. Hackett, now editor of the April 9, 1865.

Returning to his native state, he went to work in real earnest to retrieve his wasted fortune. He was a man of great prudence in business, and by honest industry he readily supplied his family with the comforts and some of the luxuries of life. About this time, by order of the Temperance Hill Baptist church, he was ordained to the full work of the ministry and continued to preach regularly the remainder of his life. For some years he was connected with the Primitive Baptists, but in February, 1888, returned to the but in February, 1888, returned to the Missionary Baptist church. For three years he has been moderator of the Tarrant county Baptist association, president of the board of missions, and was pastor at his death of the churches at Bear Creek, Bedford, Birdville and Arlington. He was a good and bind paighbor, seem to He was a good and kind neighbor, eager to advance education in his community, an ex-cellent singer and a great lover especially of sacred music. A successful farmer and business man, an able and zealous minister, in fact, he was a model Christian gentle-man, whose place can hardly be filled, and whose pure example and holy life are commended to the young people of our country. His noble wife, whose patient watchfulness and tender care during his long, weary sickness was so touching, still survives him, and she and the worthy sons and daughters still living here the profession.

Eider Mothershead left an excellent farm, well improved, and did not owe a dollar. He seemed to realize that his end was near, for he had laid away a certain sum of money with which to defray his funeral expenses. His only regret at dying was leaving his family. He was conscious to the last, and passed away without a struggle in the full triumph of the Christian

Sunday, the 19th inst., the friends of the deceased assembled in the Baptist church at Arlington to commemorate the life and services of this godly man. The rain fell in torrents, but a large congregation was present from the country around as far as Fort Worth and Bedford. The funeral discourse was delivered by Dr. S. A. Hayden of the Texas Baptist and Herald, from Hebrews xi., 39-40. Impres-sions were made which must be lasting, and saint and sinner went away with the sentiment. 'Let me die the death of the righteous, and may my last end belike his.' W. Poot.

Henry Watterson's Lecture. The date for Mr. Watterson's lecture is Wednesday, April 29. The brilliant and able editor of the Courier-Journal has never been heard in this city, and there can be no doubt of the strong and general desire to hear and see him. His lecture on "Money and Morals" is a witty and en-tertaining oration which has been received with delight and enthusiasm wherever it has been delivered. It is sure to please a popular audience and the public of Fort Worth is to be congratulated on the ap-pearance among them of the distinguished champion of Southern interests.

TEXAS SCHOOLS.

ADDITIONAL FAR - REACHING TEXTS BASED ON FACTS.

In Increase of 133 ta the Enrollment in the Public Schools of the State-The State Appropriations.

FORT WORTH, TEX., April 27, 1891.

Some time in latter part of March I made a plea for Fort Worth under the head of what you were pleased to call "Far Reaching Texts." To-day I wish to make an argument for the state, and what can be said as facts, not "estimates," that can be used as additional "facts."

as additional "facts."

Population of Texas 1880, 1,591,749; 1890, 2,285,523. A gain of 40 per cent.

Euroliment in public school 1880, 176,245; 1890, 410,909. A gain of over 133 per cent, or near 100 per cent greater than the increase in population. Is there any lack of educational sentiment in Texas?

In addition to the provisions for the common schools let us see what Texas proposes to give to her higher institutions, her liter-to give to her higher institutions, her liter-ary, her industrial and training institutions, her university, agricultural college and her normal schools, additional to the fixed amount received from the permanent fund: To the university for various bet-terments

terments $209,000

To the agricultural college 183,000

To the Sam Houston normal for completion of building 4,700

To the Prairie View normal (colored)

Total for these institutions $370.700 (Incidentals merely.)
Appropriations for other institutions for the education and amelioration of the human race; deaf and dumb, lunatic, blind, man race; deaf and dumb, lunatic, blind, orphan and reformatory asylums and Confederate home, and you have another item of $1,387,385, or a grand aggregate for all these purposes of $1.758,085.

If you add to this the expenses of running the department of education, $119,981, you will have $1.878,006 for education and charitable institutions—or nearly one-half of the entire appropriations for the maintenance of the state government for the next two years.

next two years.
Upon this "text" I would like to say atour first consolidated Southern educational association meeting this year at Lookout mountain, this is what Texas proposes to do for higher institutions of learning for the next two years.

Additionally to their fixed incomes from permanent funds she will give to her University, her agricultural college and her normal schools (for white and colored) $70,000, and to her various asylums for the care and protection and comfort of her unfortunates, $1,387,385, or nearly one-half of all the appropriations for the state gov ernment, and why! Because her school population—actually enrolled—has in-ercased in the last decade over 133 per cent. I would like to repeat this same fact, not "estimate," at our international educa-tional association meeting in Toronto, July next.

It would make good what I have so often said all over this continent—the schools of Texas are on a solid foundation. One other fact: Taxable values of Texas, in round numbers, 1880, $300,000,000; 1890, $800,000,000, an increase of nearly

The counties around and contributing to Fort Worth have, within the last ten years, quadrupled their taxable values. In another article I will tell you what should be done to increase the available school funds, since at present their basis is fixed quantity—the permanent fund—and which is not increasing in the same ratio as he school population. Very truly,

SARAH ON HER EAR.

Does an Act Behind the Scenes That Had Rehearsed Many Times, But Not Publicly.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., April 27.-Sarah Bernhardt did a piece of acting Saturday night, but it was behind the scenes, and only professionals witnessed it. She had just come off the stage after the third act, when the Turkish servant, Angelo, rushed up to her with a black eye and blood streaming over his forehead. He had been roughly handled by several grand opera house scene painters because he persisted in coming upon the stage against the orders of Manager Bouner. The scene shifters promptly knocked him out, when he be-came insolent. Bernhardt was in her room when she heard her favorite servant call for aid. She descended upon the four scene shifters like a living fire, and poured forth a storm of French expletives that would have withered them had they under-stood that tongue. After three-quarters of
